SUBJECT: APRIL 7 MFA PRESS BRIEFING: NORTH KOREA LAUNCH, SOMALI
PIRATES, CHAVEZ VISIT

11. Key points at the April 7 MFA press briefing:

-- The UN Security Council should "make a prudent response" to the North Korea rocket launch and a satellite launch is "different than a missile launch or nuclear test."

-- China has been "working to rescue the crew" of a ship from "Chinese Taiwan" captured by pirates near Somalia.

-- Venezuelan president Hugo Chavez will arrive in China April 7 for a "working visit."

North Korea Launch
-----

12. China has "taken note of North Korea's announcement" that it successfully launched a satellite, said MFA spokesperson Jiang Yu at the April 7 press conference. China hoped relevant parties would "maintain caution and restraint" in order to promote peace and stability in the region, said Jiang. China was willing to "continue to play a constructive role" on the issue. Jiang said the UN Security Council should "make a prudent response" to the launch. Jiang noted that satellite and missile technologies "show similarities and differences" and that a satellite launch is "different than a missile launch or nuclear test." This issue "also involves a country's right to the peaceful use of space," said Jiang. Asked whether China had discussed the launch with North Korea, Jiang said that "China has maintained close communication with relevant parties about the satellite launch over the last few days." "Under the circumstances," added Jiang, the best course would be to "continue the Six-Party Talks." Countries should "focus on their long term interests" and "keep cool heads" in order to continue the Six-Party Talks.

Piracy Involving Taiwan Vessel

13. When it learned of the hijacking of a ship from "Chinese Taiwan" on April 6 in the waters off of northern Somalia, China "attached great importance to the incident, worked to ascertain the situation and informed foreign embassies in China" about the situation. China was "working to rescue the crew and the boat," added the spokesperson.

Visit of Hugo Chavez

14. Venezuelan president Hugo Chavez arrived in China on April 7 for a "working visit" said Jiang. During the visit, Chavez planned to meet with President Hu Jintao and Vice President Xi Jinping. China was willing to continue cooperation with Latin American countries "including Venezuela" said Jiang.

Cyber Spies

¶15. China "firmly opposes and cracks down on all cyber-crime including hacking," said Jiang. The accusations that China engages in "so-called cyber spying" were "groundless and would lead nowhere."

Trilateral Meeting

¶16. Prime Minister Wen Jiabao would attend a breakfast meeting with leaders from Korea and Japan on the margins of the April 10-12 ASEAN Summit in Thailand. Wen Jiabao planned to "expound on Chinese ambitions for trilateral cooperation, exchange views and put forward initiatives" during that meeting, said Jiang. China would also be willing to discuss regional issues during the meeting.

Alliance for Civilization

¶17. China supported and attached great importance to the UN Alliance of Civilizations, said Jiang. The Alliance "enhances mutual trust" and China supported the efforts of Spain and Turkey with regard to the Alliance.

Visas for Foreigners in China

¶18. China dealt with foreigners "according to laws and regulations," said Jiang. China hoped all foreigners would abide by the law and was committed to protect the rights of foreigners in China.
